Chelsea in Bloom

London's largest free flower festival blooms with this year's theme 'British Icons'.

Transforming the neighbourhood with breathtaking floral displays, the world-class alternative floral show will see creations nodding to all things British, in anticipation of the Queen's Platinum Jubilee taking place the following week.

Over 90 shops, restaurants, hotels and local businesses are participating, with their own beautiful interpretations of the theme 'British Icons', competing for the coveted 'Best Floral Display' award.

Sloane Square will once more welcome a stunning central installation, proudly positioned against the Summer in the Square bars – the perfect place to soak up the atmosphere over a cocktail. It will also act as a central information point for the week, with the opportunity to book a complimentary rickshaw ride or walking tour to take in some of the highlights.

Look out for the huge floral installations across Duke of York Square, the King's Road, Pavilion Road and Sloane Street that will also be in place, for the very first time, until 5 June – extending for the Queen's Platinum Jubilee Celebrations.

Make sure you vote for your favourite display to win this year's 'People's Champion' award via the website.

The Platinum Jubilee

Join us for a weekend of merriment to celebrate the Queen's Platinum Jubilee on 4 & 5 June.

2-5 June

Take in the beauty of the neighbourhood aboard a rickshaw or on foot, accompanied by a trusted guide. Returning for the weekend, head to Sloane Square to book your complimentary spot and find out more.

4 June

From 11am to 6pm, the King's Road will be transformed into an exciting street party. Pedestrianised from Sloane Square to Cheltenham Terrace, there will be plenty of space for picnicking and celebrations with family and friends. The Fine Food Market will take place opposite Saatchi, and in partnership with the Royal Commonwealth Society, there will be a Royal Commonwealth Market offering delicious foods inspired by flavours of constituent member nations. Local cultural destinations will have showcases throughout the day, from Saatchi Gallery and Peter Jones to Cadogan Hall and the Royal Hospital.

5 June

Join the community for a live screening of the Jubilee Pageant on the running track opposite the Saatchi Gallery. The giant screen means that you won't miss a moment of the historic occasion and there will be plenty of room to relax with a picnic.

Visit kingsroad.co.uk for the full programme of activity across the weekend.

Continuing celebrations, seven egg-shaped masterpieces have arrived in Chelsea.

Map credit: @LondonBlockByBlock

The Elephant Family have partnered with Clarence Court Eggs to create this egg-citing trail across the neighbourhood, with seven sculptures to be found at Duke of York Square, Pavilion Road and Sloane Square.

Each egg of unique design represents a different decade of the Queen's reign, masterfully created by leading artists including Emily Powell, Rebecca Campbell, Sasha Compton, Simon Emery, Patricia Mitchell, Ozlem Thompson and Tatiana Alida.

On display until 16 June - visit dukeofyorksquare.com for further information.
