London Fashion Week in Chelsea

17 September, King's Road
10am - 4pm

As part of London Fashion Week's 'Citywide Celebration', join us for Chelsea's first 'Designer Picnic' on the green opposite Saatchi Gallery. There will also be a market championing sustainable food pioneers, and activity in many of your favourite shops and restaurants across the neighbourhood.

A sustainable showcase across the neighbourhood

Curated by the co-founder of Fashion Revolution, Orsola de Castro, the Designer Picnic is a chance to meet and get hands-on inspiration from four designers who are changing the way fashion is made and worn. These include:

Colechi

A collective of curators taking the London fashion scene by storm. They will be enacting their own legendary knitting club and all are invited to join – beginners to experts – for a knit and yarn (BYOK – bring your own knit – or borrow – but be there).

Katie Jones

'Crocheter extraordinaire', Katie invites you to join her colourful world where you can watch her in action or crochet your own granny square, in hot anticipation of her book 'Hip to be Square', out in October.

Revival LDN

Bringing denim upcycling to a whole new level, Revival LDN will show you how to customize and transform old denim into amazing new styles, giving your jeans multiple lives if you care and repair.

Georgia Keeling

Part of The Seam London's excellent team of seamstresses, Georgia's specialty is visible darning. Get set to be inspired by her meticulous darned 'galaxies'.

These sessions are free to attend. Find out how to book at kingsroad.co.uk.

Other highlights throughout the day, include a 'Stitch & Bitch' session at Duke of York Square, a single use plastic-free Food Market featuring sustainable food pioneers and activity from over 20 shops and restaurants from across the neighbourhood. These include a sustainability 'kiosk' from Allbirds, 'Stitch It Don't Ditch It' sessions at Brora, recycling service at Monica Vinader, quilting workshops from The Fashion School and tips and techniques from The Handbag Clinic.

Find the full list of activity at kingsroad.co.uk.

How to eat well

From swoon-worthy sourcing to zero-waste concepts, here's where to wine and dine in Chelsea where sustainability has not meant a compromise on flavour.

Five Fields

8/9 Blacklands Terrace, London SW3 2SP
020 7838 1082 | fivefieldsrestaurant.com

Deep in the heart of the Sussex countryside is an acre and a half of kitchen gardens, carefully planted by David Love-Cameron, a 'Raymond Blanc Heritage Garden' scholar. It is here that the organic and seasonal produce for Five Fields is grown. From staple fruits and vegetables to rare herbs and flowers, ten beehives responsible for pollinating and producing honey and honeycomb, as well as fallow deer, the Kitchen Garden is integral to the sustainable ethos of the restaurant, with dishes designed around the finest seasonal produce they can grow. Food waste produced in Chelsea is then returned to The Garden for composting for next season's planting.

Rabbit

172 King's Road, SW3 4UP
020 3750 0172 | rabbit-restaurant.com

With industry leaders at the helm, farm-to-fork restaurant Rabbit is led by the Gladwin brothers – the double act with a love for wild and foraged produce. Ingredients are sourced from the brother's own family farm, line-caught on British boats between Brighton to Cornwall, and the Nutbourne Vineyard ensuring that by the next day, the freshest of flavours will land straight on the King's Road. The menu changes seasonally, the kitchen is zero-waste and the nose-to-tail approach ensures you will enjoy several innovative and delicious ways of a single ingredient.

Holy Carrot

Urban Retreat, 2-4 Hans Crescent, SW1X 0LH
02038970404 | holycarrot.co.uk

Ethically sourced and seasonal produce, a menu designed to change your perception of plant-based food, with globally inspired dishes that taste good and do good. Highlights include a 'seafood' platter, sexy tofu and smoked aubergine carpaccio, and exciting menu collaborations are interspersed throughout the year, including a recent partnership with 'Seaspiracy', designed to drive awareness of the impact of industrial fishing and encourage more sustainable food choices.

Wulf & Lamb

243 Pavilion Road, SW1X 0BP
020 3948 5999 | wulfandlamb.com

Entirely plant-based restaurant, Wulf & Lamb comes complete with a delicious all-day menu and an al fresco terrace for late-summer people watching, ensuring you eat both more sustainably and enjoyably. By using less natural resources to create their delicious dishes, such as 'Chilli Non Carne' and their 'Wulf Pie', the restaurant is an important player in the movement reducing the impact caused by meat consumption, protecting our water, land and helping to tackle deforestation.

Daylesford

76-82 Sloane Avenue, SW3 3DZ
020 3848 7100 | daylesford.com

An organic farm-shop and café set within the heart of the neighbourhood, Daylesford offers fresh produce delivered daily from their Cotswold farm, including artisanal bread and pastries, seasonal fruit and vegetables, pasture-raised meat, fresh fish and cheeses. In the café, discover a menu of daily changing specials crafted with the ingredients from their market garden, grown in nutrient-rich soil that follows regenerative principles, offering both dine-in or takeaway. Daylesford has won over 100 awards across different areas of its farm including a prestigious Gold Grocer Award.
