020 3948 3840 | kxu.com

Recovery, whether from exercise, injury or illness, is known to take a little longer in the winter as the cold slows down our bodies chemical processes. Cryotherapy and infrared-saunas are known to have significant impacts on our bodies. Just three minutes in sub-85 degrees can increase collagen production, reduce inflammation and swelling, relieve brain fog, strengthen our immune systems and further recovery benefits. The direct opposite, the infra-red sauna, helps to improve energy and circulation, activates cell renewal, provides a source of vitamin D, improves heart function and is 15-20% more effective at eliminating toxins than a traditional sauna. Any if you aren't already a regular or discovered their timetable, KXU offers over 20 different fitness classes with some of London's finest PTs.
